

Harvard
Food Law and Policy Clinic
A Division of the Center for Health Law and Policy Innovation

Please join us for the Food Law Student Leadership Summit

October 2-4, 2015 • Harvard Law School • Cambridge, MA

The Food Law Student Leadership Summit is the first conference to convene law students from around the country who share a passion for food law and policy. Participants will:

- Hear from national experts about key food law and policy issues related to the environment health, food safety, and food waste
- Develop strategies to start or expand student food law organizations
- Build a national network of food law and policy colleagues
- Begin to develop coordinated strategies for addressing some of society's most pressing food law and policy concerns

Travel to and from Boston, accommodations in Cambridge, as well as meals during the Summit will be provided for all accepted applicants.

We welcome applications from any law student (JD and LLM students) at a U.S. law school. We will review applications on a rolling basis beginning in June, and advise interested students to apply early as space is limited. Admitted students will be notified no later than September 4th so that travel arrangements can be promptly made.

If you are interested in applying to the Summit, visit www.chlpi.org/flsl-summit.

Please email any questions to flpc@law.harvard.edu.

The Summit will be hosted by the Food Law and Policy Clinic (FLPC), a Division of the Center for Health Law and Policy Innovation at Harvard Law School. The FLPC is an experiential learning program for law students, which works to address the health, environmental, and economic consequences of the laws and policies that govern our food system. To learn more about our work, please visit the FLPC website at www.chlpi.org/food-law-and-policy.